

graphic design

reproduction
&
representation

since 1800

PAUL JOBLING

DAVID CROWLEY

Contents

	List of figures	vi
	List of tables	x
	General editor's foreword	xi
	Acknowledgements	xii
	List of abbreviations	xiii
	Introduction	1
1	A medium for the masses I: the popular illustrated weekly and the new reading public in France and England during the nineteenth century	9
2	Censorship and symbolism: the politics of caricature and satire in France and England during the nineteenth century	41
3	Fin-de-siècle poster design: objectifying national style, pleasure and gender	77
4	Looking right and left: graphic propaganda in Britain after 1914	107
5	Between utopianism and commerce: modernist graphic design	137
6	A medium for the masses II: modernism and documentary in photojournalism	171
7	From pop to protest: graphic design and youth culture in Britain in the 1960s	211
8	In the empire of signs: ideology, mythology and pleasure in advertising	245
9	Graphic design in a postmodern context: the beginning and the end?	271
	Index	291